
Re: joomla can't find installer

Posted by netorius - 2007/01/06 07:10

ok, i think i found a new one for you.

i ran macros to search and remove each of the standard ascii chars..

here's what's left. in the text editor i was using it appeared as ascii ll char acter 186 on this board its appearing as quotes. I remember now seeing ascii l character 127 in some posts after pasting.

<http://www.cdummond.qc.ca/cegep/informat/Professeurs/Alain/files/ascii.htm> note also by highlight with mouse and select beneath the chars below the additional "white" space.

I'm now going to reverse the process and try and search for the below characters and delete from xml file and try to import.

will let you know how it goes.

Ãçâ,-Ã“Ãçâ,-Ã•Ãçâ,-Ã“Ãçâ,-Ã•Ãçâ,-Ã“Ãçâ,-Ã•

Re: joomla can't find installer

Posted by netorius - 2007/01/06 07:25

success, it appears that it's the extended ascii chars i posted.

for your source of info, i found the article they are coming from and they are quotation marks.

http://www.netorius.cjb.cc/view/News/Latest_News/Stephen_Covey_and_A_Summary_Of_The_7_Habits/

they are not keyboard quotation marks as there is an opening and closing quotation mark.

K, now i'm off to try the other set of articles.

will let you know if i find anything else.

Re: joomla can't find installer

Posted by netorius - 2007/01/06 08:38

apparently the second file/section contained a different character.

it the start and end of Ãçâ,-â€• and this is the better choice Ãçâ,-â€• and they don't appear to be normal keyboard dashes.

http://www.netorius.cjb.cc/view/Search_Engine_Optimization_SEO/Latest_SEO/New__Blogger/is the article.

hope this helps.

Re: joomla can't find installer

Posted by netorius - 2007/01/06 08:46

I know i use textpad,, have forever it seems. i know more people use uedit.

sounds like i a macro that can parse through a file and strip out all standard ascii characters is called for..

anyways, have it all imported now..

the cjb site will be coming down soon as my new domain is up.

lots of other content to move into it yet.

Netorius
12bmedia.com

=====

Re: joomla can't find installer

Posted by Steve - 2007/01/06 12:59

Hi netorius

Glad to hear you got the job done.

I have been putting together a replacement function that will grab any of the ASCII characters and replace them with their Numerical Code equivalent or if there is no matching character in the look up table a "?" will be displayed.

This should if all goes to plan be in the next release.

I put together a rough reference that you may find handy

http://www.bestdownloadsites.com/ascii_table.html

More to add to it yet from the Extended ASCII range.

Like the 128 from your previous post will be replaced with "& # 128;" without the spaces as that's just so it will post here:

128= Ã¸ change to "& # 128;"

Also it appears that the "Ã¸" is another trouble maker I'll replace it with the "& # 151;" which should solve the issue.

Thanks for the feedback it has been very helpful. :)

Re: joomla can't find installer

Posted by netorius - 2007/01/06 13:20

No, thank you. it's rather trivial data that i moved but i wanted to move it.

I had tried a mysql dump and import.. lets say that after a couple tries and a couple joomla reinstalls.. i gave up.. Your component is GREAT.

I have always been into trouble shooting, I'm usually like a pit bull.. once i get my teeth in, i don't let go.. i remember taking apart clock radios and other things of mom and dads to "see how they work" or to "fix" them.

sometimes like this case, I just need a little nudge in a certain direction..

thanks for you help and QUICK responses and help.

old domain is Officially redirected to new domain. www.12bmedia.com.

would be more than happy to put up a button or banner or text link for you.

let me know if you have anything preferred.

Re: joomla can't find installer

Posted by Steve - 2007/01/06 14:00

old domain is Officially redirected to new domain. www.12bmedia.com.

Nice job I like the template and the sizing feature at the top.

would be more than happy to put up a button or banner or text link for you.

let me know if you have anything preferred.

I prefer text links but please don't feel obligated.

Re: joomla can't find installer

Posted by Steve - 2007/01/06 17:16

Hi Netorius

I have added a new function to replace Extended ASCII characters.
http://bestdownloadsites.com/replace_accented/admin.export_content.zip

If you could run a test on your content to see how it goes that would be great.

unzip and Upload/FTP to:
/administrator/components/com_export_content/admin.export_content.php
Replace admin.export_content.php
Then re-compile all the content and see if it will install. 8)

Re: joomla can't find installer

Posted by elkuku - 2007/01/08 20:21

I have added a new function to replace Extended ASCII characters.Works great for me :)
Would be nice to have a SVN location on forge.joomla.org :wink:

Re: joomla can't find installer

Posted by Steve - 2007/01/08 22:16

Hi Nikolai

Works great for me
That's good news.
This will be in the next release.

Would be nice to have a SVN location on forge.joomla.org

Yeah I've been meaning to do that but I find the forge a hassle to use.

Re: joomla can't find installer

Posted by elkuku - 2007/01/09 19:49

This will be in the next release.That's good news :wink: don't forget about language related stuff (a mail is on the way).
Would be nice to have a SVN location on forge.joomla.org
I find the forge a hassle to use.This was also my first experience... BUT:

Please try this: <http://tortoisesvn.tigris.org/> !!! (win only :()

You'll love it - I swear :) and it also makes life easier for beta-testers.. :wink:

Re: joomla can't find installer

Posted by Steve - 2007/01/10 10:40

This was also my first experience... BUT:

Please try this: <http://tortoisesvn.tigris.org/> !!! (win only)

You'll love it - I swear and it also makes life easier for beta-testers..

I have used tortoiseSVN before (outstanding program) it's just the Joomla forge it's that slow it just about brings me to tears. :cry:

That said I might set something up.
If I decide to go ahead it won't be until the next release.

=====

Beta 1.6 released

Posted by Steve - 2007/01/17 22:15

Beta 1.6 released

Details here:
<http://bestdownloadsites.com/export/viewtopic.php?t=14>

=====